

ROOTS FOR RESILIENCE

The Roots for Resilience program provides training and support to select graduate students on open, reproducible science, computational infrastructure and AI tools to enhance research focused on environmental and societal resilience.

© Kanenori / pixabay

Apply online by May 31.

Application details and additional eligibility information can be found at the R4R website. Accepted students will be notified of their participation by the end of July.

Cohort fellows receive a $7,000 stipend.

Half of the stipend is disbursed after the start of the program and half at the end of the semester upon successful completion of the program.

Eligible students

- University of Arizona PhD candidate who has completed qualifying exams or master's student in a professional program.
- Pursuing a degree or research project related to environmental and societal resilience.
- Available to actively engage in weekly Tuesday and Thursday sessions during the Fall semester from 11:00 am–1:00 pm.

For additional information and FAQs, please visit the Roots for Resilience website: datascience.arizona.edu/r4r

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA
Arizona Institute for Resilience

RESEARCH, INNOVATION & IMPACT
Data Science Institute

Supported by the TRIF Water, Environmental, and Energy Solutions initiative